

ABSTRACT OF THE INVENTION

The invention relates to a method and an assembly for forming structures that are dielectrically insulated from each other by means of filled hermetically sealed isolation trenches for the formation of mechanical-electrical sensor structures, which require for 5 their functioning a hermetically sealed cavity, in which are located the moveable sensor elements.